Create a Memory Map

Months ago, you submitted to be part of a presentation at AIHce EXP 2019, and the date of your talk seemed so far away. But now, it's closer than ever, and time to start your planning process. The best place to start is to review your session description and remind yourself, exactly what you committed to presenting.

Using your description, begin to create an outline, and/or visual road map for your presentation.

- The best way to start is using just a few words, per idea, write down the basic points you want to cover.
- To help visualize those points in your mind, create a sketch. (Stick figures, anything at all)
- Create a path, or route, between your sketches, using arrows, symbols or numbers to help you visualize the flow of your ideas.

Once you've seen this memory map of your ideas, you'll feel differently about your presentation. You'll have created a visual for yourself and another tool to help you remember your flow.
