and influenced their frame of reference?

This webinar will teach you how to apply active listening and effective communication skills in a multi-generational workforce setting. The ultimate goal being to foster better communication within cross-generational teams to create an improved work environment for everyone, no matter their age or generational identification.

The topics covered in this webinar are part of the CPAG Serving the Changing Workforce content priority and a continuation of the soft skills webinars presented by the Leadership & Management Committee in collaboration with the Student Local Section, Students & Early Career Professionals, and Mentoring and Professional Development Committees.

Learning Objectives:
Upon completion, you will be able to:

- Define the multi-generational workplace.
- Provide strategies for communicating with the multi-generational workforce based on real-world experiences from mid-career professionals.
- Identify how active listening skills for feedback on the best communication methods for the multi-generational workforce will equate to better occupational health and safety results.
- Describe what our newest generation expects from their workplace from the perspective of the AIHA Student Local Section.
