Program Details: The NOHC for 2025 is a 2.5-day event that will provide a platform for professionals like yourself to share insights, exchange knowledge, and discuss emerging hazards and trends in Industrial Hygiene and Occupational Health and Safety.

In a world of increasing environmental concerns and evolving workplace dynamics, staying ahead in Industrial Hygiene is crucial. This year's NOHC 2025 will be a conference focused on emerging hazards and trends in Industrial Hygiene, Occupational Health and Safety and will offer a vital platform for professionals to address these rapidly changing challenges:

- Sharing Expertise and Research: OEHS professionals convene to share new ideas, research findings, and successful strategies for protecting worker health.
- Discussing Emerging Hazards: Conferences delve into the latest developments in hazards affecting the workplace, including, but not limited to, those related to heat stress, new technologies like AI and wearables, and evolving regulatory landscapes.
- Technological Advancements in EHS: Discussing the integration of AI, IoT devices, and predictive analytics for real-time monitoring, data analysis, and proactive risk mitigation.
- Emphasis on Mental Health and Well-being: Recognizing the growing importance of psychological safety and integrating mental health support programs into EHS strategies.
- Professional Development and Training: Conferences often include professional development courses and educational sessions that provide in-depth training on specialized topics in industrial hygiene and occupational health.
- Regulatory Changes and Compliance Innovation: Examining the evolving regulatory landscape, including new reporting requirements and approaches to compliance, such as the focus on PFAS regulations.
- Sustainability and ESG Integration: Understanding how companies are incorporating environmental responsibility and sustainability goals into their EHS practices and the importance of ESG compliance.
- Supply Chain Safety and Accountability: Addressing the need to extend EHS standards to suppliers and ensure safe practices throughout the global supply chain.

- Networking and Collaboration: These events foster valuable networking opportunities, allowing participants to connect with industry leaders, peers, and potential collaborators.
- Shaping the Future of OEHS: By addressing critical issues and trends like sustainability, mental health, and the integration of technology, these conferences play a vital role in shaping the future of the OEHS profession.
